This week marks the completion of the Eisenhower Administration's first year in power. It has been a year when several important issues have been deferred for decision until proper study can be made of them. But at last the logic of events declared that the President must come forward with a constructive legislative program. In the last few days the President has been articulating and expounding with growing clarity his congressional program.

The President is using a series of addresses to get his points across. His initial address was directed to the American people. In it, along with a general survey of the outstanding accomplishments realized since his inauguration, he attempted to define the characteristic attitudes, goals, purposes, beliefs and expectations of the Administration. It was in the nature of an overview of what to expect of his leadership.

His next speech was his State of the Union address to a joint session of Congress. In this he conveyed more particularly what he considered to be of greatest public interest, and importance. He recognized by implication all the social gains in the last twenty years and proposed to improve on them.

In subsequent addresses to Congress he has spelled out more specifically his considerate proposals on Labor, Agriculture, Social programs and Health. In these communications he usually has taken a middle of the road course. He has yet three addresses to deliver in order to cover his major proposals.

This week Secretary of State Dulles is off to the Berlin Conference of the Foreign Ministers of the Big Four. The principal issues are supposedly Germany and the collective application of atomic energy to peace time purposes. Russia has declared it to be her intention to bring up the problem of the acceptance of the representation of Red China at the conference. The Secretary has recently defined what seems to be a new departure in our foreign policy: America will confront the next act of Communist aggression with her full atomic might.

Modern Heating Plant Constructed

A pumice-block building has been erected to house the central heating plant, which serves the science hall and Hester Memorial gymnasium. The old building was damaged by fire in December.

The new fire-proof structure is eighteen feet, eight inches by twenty-eight feet.

Northwest Quartets To Sing in Festival

The fifth annual Gospel Quartet festival, sponsored by the Singing Men of George Fox college, will be presented Sunday, February 7, at 3:00 p. m., at the Newberg Union high school.

Quartets appearing this year are the Ambassadors from Multnomah School of the Bible; Victory quartet, Seattle Pacific college; and the Four Flats, formerly of George Fox college.

Also singing in the program will be the Voice of Faith quartet, Foursquare Gospel church in Portland, and quartets from Cascade college and Northwest Christian college. The Seminares, men's glee club from Western Evangelical seminary, Jennings Lodge, Oregon, will also be presented on the program.

For the fifth year Roy Clark, formerly an instructor in music at GFC, and now pastor of the First Friends church in Vancouver, Washington, will emcee the auditorium program.

Because of the large crowd expected, two complete programs will be given simultaneously, one in the auditorium and one in the gymnasium. To accomplish this, the quartets will rotate between the auditorium and gym. Master of ceremonies for the gymnasium program will be Dr. Arthur Roberts, new professor of religion and philosophy at GFC this year.

Heading up the festival this year is Richard Zeller, a junior from Salem, Oregon. Vice-president of the Singing Men is Fred Newkirk, freshmen from Melba, Idaho; and secretary for the organization is Robert Byrd, sophomore from Lynnville, Iowa.

Publicity is being handled by Maynard Corlett, freshman from Portland. Supervising traffic is John Adams, sophomore of Kamiah, Idaho; and freshman Harlan Barnett, and junior Clint Brown, from Salem and Shedd, Oregon, respectively head up the ushering committee. The reception is being handled by John Davis, freshman from Salem.

In Sympathy

The students of George Fox college extend sympathy to the Donald McNichols family for the recent passing of Mrs. McNichols' mother, Mrs. George Andrews of Wessington Springs, South Dakota.

Florine Price and Ardeth Beals Elected As Co-Editors of Crescent Yesterday

Florine Price, Homedale, Idaho, and Ardeth Beals, Portland, were elected co-editors of The Crescent yesterday. The next edition, February 5, will be edited by the new staff. Their term will continue until February 1, 1955.

Florine, a sociology major, is a junior. She has served as a reporter, and is feature editor of the retiring staff. As a sophomore, Florine was co-feature editor. On her high school paper she was a reporter, feature writer and editorial writer. Her plans for the future include graduate work after graduation from George Fox, and eventual medical-social work.

Ardeth, a sophomore, is majoring in music. She edited the freshman edition of The Crescent last year. At Washington high school in Portland she was a page editor on the school paper. After graduating from GFC Ardeth plans to become a music teacher.

This is the first time in recent years that co-editors have been elected for The Crescent.

The editor's report that their staff has not been selected as yet, but will be released in the next edition. Under present Associated Student laws, publications editors are allowed to choose their own assistants.

Dr. J. A. Huffman To Give Lectures

Dr. J. A. Huffman, well-known minister, educator, author, and lecturer, is scheduled for a series of lectures to be held here at George Fox college, February 15-19.

Dr. Huffman is now president of the Winona Lake School of Theology at Winona Lake, Indiana, and has become prominent in the field of archeology.

On Sunday, February 14, he will speak at the Newberg Friends church.

Comprehensive Exams To Be Given Seniors

George Fox college seniors are scheduled to take their comprehensive examinations the week of February 8-12.

Each prospective graduate will take a general knowledge test, in addition to a test in his major field.

McNichols Leaves On Business Trip

The Dean and Mrs. Lydia McNichols left Thursday afternoon on a business trip to California in behalf of the school. During his stay in California, the Dean will call on the Amos Stewart Foundation, which contributes an annual Scholarship fund for the school. Also he plans to contact Alumni and former students of the school with the aim of inaugurating interest in the present program of the college. He also hopes to build up a substantial prospective student list. The McNichols plan to return to the campus Saturday, January 30.

Plans are now underway for the formal student reception for students and faculty of George Fox college. The reception will be held in the college dining hall on February 5, at 8:00 p. m.

This function, sponsored annually by the Student Christian union, is held at the beginning of the second semester to formally welcome new and returning students to the college, and to acquaint all with the faculty.

This year the reception will also be combined with the annual Valentine party. The evening's activities will be ruled over by the King and Queen of Hearts. The royalty is chosen from the freshman and sophomore classes by popular vote of the student body.

SMA Contest Slated

During the month of February the Student Ministerial association of George Fox college will sponsor a Scripture memorization contest. Individual and inter-class competition will be encouraged. The purpose of the contest will be to create interest in scripture memorization for use in personal evangelism. All students are encouraged to participate.

Regular meetings of the SMA are held the second Tuesday of every month. Dr. Roberts, professor of religion and philosophy, advises the group.

In Appreciation

Behind every publication are many individuals who make that publication possible.

Most of those who play a contributing role are seldom credited for their work. They receive little publicity and few are aware of their efforts.

The editor of THE CRESCENT is the captain of a team; a team of individuals whose efforts are coordinated toward a common goal. That goal is the publication of a newspaper which will best describe campus activity, and give friends of the college an avenue for insight into the physical, mental, spiritual, and social structure of their school.

Co-captain of the team, as assistant editor this year, was Arnold Lee. His willingness to work and alert proofreading made Arnold an invaluable addition to The Crescent staff.

Feature editor Florine Price deserves much appreciation for seeing that the feature stories were submitted. The task of editing features is difficult, but Florine handled it admirably.

Ron Barnick was editor of men's athletics. Interesting, readable sports columns are a big boost for any paper, and Ron's have been tops.

As Women's sports editor, Rosemary Ramsey gave the women's athletic program the attention it deserves. Rosemary's work is deserving of much praise.

Probably the most under-rated aspect of a college publication is the business staff. This is the part of the staff which sees that expenses are met, and sends the papers to subscribers.

Business manager was Garth Reece. He spent many hours contacting businessmen, selling advertising space. Garth's friendly manner and ability in meeting the public helped THE CRESCENT immeasurably.

The circulation department, which comprises the other half of the business staff, was headed by Velda Leach. Velda, with assistants Charlotte Passolt and Gladys Turnidge, folded papers, ran them through the addressograph, mailed them, and handled all contacts with the U. S. Postal Service. Subscribers who received their copies regularly and promptly are indebted to this trio.

The reporters are listed above. These individuals gathered information and wrote the stories for the paper. To each reporter, the editorial staff says a big "Thank you!"

Others we wish to thank include our printers, the Newberg Graphic; the businessmen who advertise in our paper; the George Fox college administration and faculty; and the students of GFC. The cooperation of all these has been very much appreciated.

Now The Crescent enters a year under new management. We urge continued cooperation, that the paper might fulfill an ever greater service to George Fox college and its constituents.

music professor at George Fox college, and Marcia Bridenstine was revealed January 2, 1954 at a private party of friends in Seattle.

Professor Reed, director of the GFC a cappella choir, and instructor in piano and music theory, graduated from Seattle Pacific college in 1951. He has completed four quarters of graduate study in musicology at the University of Washington and expects to complete work on his master's degree this summer.

Miss Bridenstine received her A. B. degree in music from the University of Washington in 1950, and her master's degree and librarianship in 1952. She is now music cataloguer in the Seattle public library.

August, 1954, is the date set for the wedding.

ald Millage of Talent, Oregon announced their engagement Christmas day in Talent.

Virginia, a major in science, is working full time this year at Nap's grocery store and at Riley's photo studio. She was deputation chairman for the Student Christian union for two years, was Homecoming princess in 1951, and has been Crescent reporter for four years. Virginia is a three-year letterman in volleyball and softball, and has lettered two years in basketball.

Donald is planning to enter the University of Oregon as a junior in September where he will study to become a certified public accountant. He attended Southern Oregon College of Education for two years and was in the army for two, one year in Korea.

The wedding is planned for August of 1954.

and then prayed every night that we would be able to get married when we reached the age of thirteen."

But it wasn't until they were nineteen that Rollie Hartley and Joanne Joanis announced their engagement, which occurred during Christmas vacation.

Rollie, a sophomore from Talent, Oregon, plans to major in religion. He holds the position as forward on the varsity first five at GFC, and was guard on the varsity ten at Southern Oregon College of Education where he attended his first year.

Joanne, a sophomore at SOCE, is an education major and plans to teach in an elementary school upon graduating. She is a member of the honorary society there.

The wedding date is set for August of "some" year, probably 1954 or '55.

Letter to the Editor

Music plays an important part in the lives of students attending George Fox college. There are several music majors and many more who are very interested in the field. With the many musical activities going on it seems that we lack only one thing—a music club.

This club could meet once a month with planned programs provided. The programs could be live, records, or just discussions of the different types of music. Folk music, popular music, opera, art songs and many other types of music could be presented.

All students of George Fox college who are interested in taking an active part in the club could be eligible.

Are there other students interested in such a club?

If so, why don't you talk it up among other students and with me form such a club. I'm sure both Mrs. McNichols and Mr. Reed would be interested in helping us organize and get off to a good start.

—Robert Byrd

Dum-Da-Dum-Dum

By Florine Price

My name's Thursday. My job is writing features and that's when they're due—Thursday. My editor wants a feature—"make it long," he says, "and good this time! Just the facts, Thursday. Play a hunch!"

Grabbing a handful of pencils and a ream of paper I walked towards the Crescent office. Then I met Little White Walking Wood. She was carrying a basket and pretended not to notice me.

"OK, Ma'am. May I talk to you a minute? Just want a few facts. What's in your basket, Ma'am?"

She wouldn't tell, but I was playing a hunch. I'd write my feature—without facts.

I took the shirt-cut through the laundry shop and picked up my cuff-links I had had replated. Then I hurried to my friend's house. Friend has nothing to do with this, he's just off the record.

But Little White Walking Wood got to Friend's house before me. My hunch was wrong; I'll still get the facts. She met me at the door, still carrying her basket.

"Telephone," she said.

Radio Listeners Discover New Appeal In Expanded Quaker Hour Broadcast

By Arnold Lee

To church people and non-church-goers alike throughout various sections of the United States, the message of Friends is appealing in a new and vital way. Through the recent addition of a radio program known as the Quaker Hour, Friends are able to present the Gospel to thousands of new homes. Begun on a larger scale in early August, the Quaker Hour, transcribed in Portland, Oregon, is becoming increasingly popular.

The Quaker Hour did not originate in Portland, however. For many years before, Friends in southern Idaho had been presenting the message of Quakers in a local program of the same name. Local churches are responsible for presentation. More recently, however before the program was enlarged, Rev. Dorwin Smith of Star, Idaho, was the radio pastor, music being provided by a local quartet.

Feeling the need of enlarging their outreach generally, Friends of Oregon Yearly Meeting decided to make the Quaker Hour a Yearly Meeting project. Consequently, in early August of 1953, the first program was recorded, put on tapes, and the Quaker Hour was on its way.

When the new Quaker Hour began, the recording staff included

Milo C. Ross, radio minister, the widely-known Four Flats quartet, and Roy Clark in charge of the music. Later a vocal ensemble was added, featuring solos, duets, and trios.

Additions to the staff since the first recording of the Quaker Hour include: Dick Zeller, Steve Ross, Marilyn Barnes, Margaret Hancuff, and Arnold Lee, currently students at George Fox college. Former students include Jack Snow, organist, Klane Robinson, Pete Snow, Lucy Edmundson, Rosetta Ballard, Eleanor Burton and Mrs. Joyce (Perisho) Lewis. Elizabeth Batton of Cascade college is accompanying at the piano. A very recent feature on the program has been Arnold Lee and his violin in supporting obbligato parts for the soloists.

Harlow Ankeny, business manager of the Quaker Hour, states that confirmed expansion may soon extend the program to several new stations in Kansas and California. The Quaker Hour is currently featured on eight stations in the United States: KFS, Nampa, Idaho; KMED, Medford, Oregon; KASH, Eugene, Oregon; KPOJ, Portland, Oregon; KTAC, Tacoma, Washington; KSPO, Spokane, Washington; KWSK, Pratt, Kansas; and KBOE, Oskaloosa, Iowa.

It was my editor! "Facts, Thursday, get them!"

I was desperate—my story is due and I've already played my hunch. Little White Walking Wood spoke.

"Thursday, look in my basket." Goody! I peered into the secret compartment and pulled out . . . a revolver! But it was fake—there was some paper inside—it was a feature story for my paper.

"I'm shot!" I said. "Thanks, Ma'am."

DEVOTIONAL

By Verdella Greene

"Life is a grindstone—either grinding one down or polishing one, depending on what he is made of."—Unknown.

Man is continually confronted with problems, some great and some very small. The way in which he copes with these reveals to the world the kind of man he is. The way in which he allows these to affect and influence him clearly indicates his state of grace.

Strength is gained through victory. The problems which life presents to us are often God's way of proving us or testing our faith. Gold must be tried by fire to be purified, wheat must be crushed into flour, and the ground must be pierced by the plow before it can receive seed. Christians must experience trials, be faced with obstacles, decisions and temptations. But they must triumph over these, becoming stronger, "polished" Christians, not crushed by the opposing forces about them.

"But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."—I Cor. 15:57.

Maintenance Man Finds Work Interesting

By Bob Byrd

Through rain, heat, snow, or there is always one man on campus you can find hard at work. His name is Isaac Smith, maintenance man at George Fox College. Mr. Smith has filled his shoes at GFC for the past seven years.

Isaac and his wife, Esther, live across from the campus and are very active in school affairs, acting as off-campus advisers for Foreign Missionary Fellowship. Isaac's alma mater is Pacific State College, Azusa, California (formerly Training School for Christian Workers, Huntington, California).

Matemala, Central America, is Isaac's home for five years. During the California Year-Long Meeting of Friends mission in 1948, Isaac was an industrial missionary.

Members of the Newberg Friends church for the past six years, Isaac and Esther have been very active in church affairs. Esther is especially active in the local missionary society and Isaac is a member of the ministry and oversight. The Smiths have also been very active in committee work.

To the students at GFC Isaac and Esther have become adopted parents, for their home is always open to all and their wise council is appreciated.

"It has been one of the greatest joys of my life working with the young people at GFC," says Isaac. "Every year I watch boys and girls develop into young men and women going out to further the kingdom through the ministry, teaching and other professions."

★ ★ SPORTS SIDELIGHTS ★ ★

Tonight the Quakers entertain the league leading Reed college Griffins, 1953 Metropolitan conference champions, in one of the most crucial contests of the 1953-54 race. Since the game is the first meeting of this school year for the traditional athletic rivals and the Quakers were 1952 champs, it is expected that this meeting will prove most interesting as well as decisive in the current MCC campaign. While GFC edged Concordia in last week's 68-67 thriller, the Griffins dumped Oregon Dental to their initial loop loss of the schedule.

Ron Barnick

The Reed contest is but the first of a trio of top-flight billings for the final two week-ends of the semester at Hester gym. Tomorrow evening, George Bales' quintet faces Multnomah School of the Bible for the second conference clash in two nights on the Quaker court. Multnomah is again expected to attempt to stop the Quakers with its set-up ball control play.

The Northwest Nazarene-George Fox tilt January 30 highlights the non-conference slate for the year. NNC has compiled an impressive record this season against ball clubs of the Northwest. George Fox opens spring semester action against Western Evangelical February 2.

Friday night's 68-67 victory over Concordia further attests to the significance of the Hobson fast-break system used by coach George Bales here at George Fox. A slower style, under the same conditions, would hardly have moved the basketball across the center line and into the potential scoring area, after Concordia had almost cinched the game with a bucket with six seconds to play. However, quick passing and speed afoot provided the circumstances needed to win the contest in these final seconds. The free throw opportunity further emphasizes that phase of the winter sport toward winning ball games.

The Economy Drug quintet, who twice this month outscored GFC, boasts several better cage performers in Oregon AAU circles among its numbers. Bob Payne, Oregon State and all Coast conference forward of two years ago, is the number ten who paced the Druggists to their win Saturday. Guard Bruce Barker, number seven, is a former Willamette university cager. Both men now coach high school sports.

This department expresses appreciation to those who assisted in presenting Crescent sports this semester. Those thanked include Earl Tycksen and Ralph Cammack, reporters; Ralph Beebe, statistician; and Rosemary Ramsey and Erma Lea Broyles, girls' sports writers.

George Fox to Play Northwest Nazarene In Hester Gym Next Saturday Evening

Saturday, January 30, the George Fox college Quakers host the Northwest Nazarene college Crusaders from Nampa, Idaho to highlight the local 1953-1954 non-conference basketball schedule. Coach George Bales' Quakers meet LaMont Lee's visiting Idahoans at 8:15 p. m. in the Hester Memorial gymnasium contest.

The Nazarenes who sport a good record against such leading varsities of the Northwest as Boise Junior college, College of Idaho, Seattle Pacific college, and Westminster, make this stop during a western Oregon road trip that also includes a January 28 visit to Linfield college at McMinnville.

The Crusader starting quintet, chosen from a twelve man roster averaging 6-2 in height, is made up of one senior, three sophomores, and one freshman, the senior being veteran 6' Myron Finkbeiner, a starter for three years. He will hold down his usual guard berth along with Paul Bynum, 5'11", a deadly set shot artist and transfer from Olympia Junior college. Coach "Monty" Lee relies heavily upon husky Bob Motonwine, 6'3", for the pivot chores. Former Nampa high all-stater Mickey Dean, 6'2", will fill one forward slot and will have Darrel Reisch, a 6'4" frosh, as his position partner. Both men are rugged and may be counted upon heavily for the team's tallies.

Others on the twelve man NNC varsity squad include Leon Doane, 6'4" sophomore center from Nampa; sophomore Harold Weber, 6' forward from Walla Walla, Washington; Clarence Kinzler, 6'3", freshman from Nampa; Dale Oenby, 6' guard from Meridian, Idaho; Jerry Dalquist, 5'11" freshman guard and a first string guard on the Renton high, Washington "A" championship team; Harold Stickney, 6'4" junior center or forward in his third season; and Tom Lowry, 6'5" transfer from Washington Springs Junior college.

Quakers Down Concordia, 68-67; Meet Reed Griffins Here Tonight

Two Free Throws By 'Cub' Grimm Give Quakers Win

The George Fox college Quakers Friday, January 15, edged the determined sharp shooting crew from Concordia college 68-67, in a thrill-packed Hester gym special that went right down to the final buzzer.

The Lutherans from Portland led throughout most of the game and were ahead 67-66 with only about two seconds left in the game when Quaker forward "Cub" Grimm was fouled, allowing him the two free throws that won the game for the locals.

The narrow final seconds' triumph made it three successive wins in the four loop outings for the Metropolitan conference Quakers.

In the first quarter the Lutherans jumped off to an early lead with their sharp shooting and broad play. Led by the marksmanship of guard Richie Heins, the Cavaliers dominated action throughout the first half. The score at the completion of the first period of play was 20 to 12 in favor of the visitors.

During second quarter play the visiting quintet increased their advantage to one more field goal. While the Quakers had trouble in the first half finding the hole in the basket, the guests experienced little difficulty as they seemed to have their shooting eyes with them. At the half time the Portlanders still led, now 34-24.

In the exciting third quarter the Quakers came within only two points of the lead as they fought back, out rebounding and out scoring the visitors. The home team scored 24 points to the Lutherans 16, but were still one field goal away from their opponents when the whistle blew to end playing time in the third canto. The score at this time was 50 to 48 for Concordia.

Paced by Grimm the Quakers put everything they had in to the game in the final stanza to knot the score. From then on the lead changed repeatedly in the last minutes of the game until the crucial free tosses came that won the contest.
